snot a tiny ICBM nose cone of the future 5,000 miles over the Atlantic today. It was recovered two hours later for the first time in seven launching attempts.

The cone, which could carry power a packed ICBM warheads, was fired on target by an 80-foot Thor-Able rocket.

Air Force officials announced that the recovery by ships located in the impact area was "a secondary test objective but an additional bonus to the test program as it will provide physical verification of telemetry. (instrumentation) data received.

The missile roared cloft at 1:35 a.m. (EST), and appeared to perform perfectly.

The main job was to learn how well the cone survived the blazing reentry from space through the earth's atmosphere at speeds close to 10.000 miles per hour.

Two hours after it hit the water, the cone was spotted by a C54 reconnaissance plane. Earlier, the cone's reentry, which was like a tiny meteor, was sighted by several ships in the area.
